Interactive concerts for SEN schools

Small Town Jones are Jim Jones and Dave Little, who've played together since their early college days. This indie-folk duo perform acoustic original songs inspired by the rolling hills and storm-lashed coast of their home in Devon.

Rise Duo
1 March

Rise Duo's performances feature close vocal harmonies over the sounds of flute, keyboard and cahn. Drawing from an extensive palette of influences, Pip and Mickey perform vibrant originals and acoustic arrangements of familiar favourites.

Boubakiki create highly varied music, drawing from classical, jazz, folk and non-Western music. Joe (saxophone) and Rosie (handpan) play original material devised through collaborative composition, arrangements and improvisation, making the most of their unusual combination of instruments.

How does it work?

- 45 minute concerts via Zoom Webinar – no need for a Zoom account to join the session
- Special schools concerts particularly suited to primary-age pupils, but musicians will offer activities for children with a range of additional needs.
- Each concert includes opportunities for children to interact with musicians and join in with tailored participatory activities
- A musical ‘treat’ direct to the classroom, supporting pupil and staff mental wellbeing
- Safe to access – only the musicians & Live Music Now host are visible on screen

The children were very focused and joined in. They were engaged throughout all of the session.

They participated by singing along, creating music with their body parts and asking questions. They love the opportunity to see instruments they may otherwise not get the chance to see.

The musicians were enthusiastic and competent. The pupils really enjoyed shaking the maracas and banging the tambourines!
